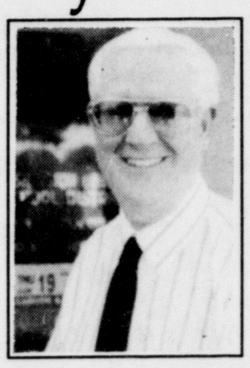
'It was time for me to step aside'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

W.U.S.D. Superintendent Dr. Dennis Kelleher, who leaves the post this week to work at a state education post, told the News-Ledger yesterday that he felt it was time to move on.

"It was time for me to step aside," he said of the decision that ended a school board and community controversy about his tenure. "Though I'm not a bad person, I don't think anybody can bring those five board members together. Perhaps the next person can."



DR. DENNIS KELLEHER

"I truly hope things kind of calm down for the district," Kelleher added. "I hope we started some positive things (during my tenure). Whether I get credit for them or not is not the issue. The test scores of the students are improving. That's not to say we are where we want to be, but we're moving in the right direction.

"I hope we'll continue to focus on facilities. We passed a school bond – I'm not saying I did it, because there were a lot of people working together. We have new expectations for facilities here.

"I hope they'll continue to expand community involvement (in the schools). One of my suggestions is that before the board adopts its goals, they have a town hall meeting to discuss them. I think this blue ribbon committee (formed by Mayor Cabaldon to address quality in local schools) will also help.

"It takes a village to raise a child."

Kelleher said that, although he heads on leave to accept a Department of Education post in Sacramento, his local roots aren't severed, and he still plans on attending local high school football games and other events.

The school board will interview candidates for a temporary replacement for Kelleher next week.

Cheap heat & cooling -- from below

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

He had to use the backhoe anyway. So Jim Piatt figured "why not?"

For the cost of 180 feet of PVC pipe and some scrounged parts, Piatt is building a system that will harness the earth to help heat and cool his home and shop on Alder Dr. in West Sacramento.

Piatt, a semi-retired real estate professional, came to the city from Washington state and began working on his retirement home, with help from a local construction company. Piatt is experienced working on heating, air conditioning and ventilation systems aboard Navy ships and submarines. And as a teenager, Piatt remembered reading a magazine article on how geothermal energy could be used to both heat and cool a building.

"I purchased a backhoe (a piece of heavy equipment for digging) and did all the excavation for the house myself, and when I got done, I sold the backhoe," he relates. "I was digging ditches for my utility lines out to the street, and I said, why not throw some piping into it?"

So Piatt ran a circuit of PVC pipe about eight to nine feet underground for his house, and another circuit for his workshop. Both circuits travel from the buildings towards the street and back. He will fill the pipes with antifreeze.

Since the ground, Piatt believes, will stay a constant 62 degrees year round, he will be able to rig up a system that either extracts heat from the ground to warm his home in winter, or transfers heat from the home to the earth in summer.

"It's a heat transfer system," explained Piatt. "We transfer heat from the house into the ground in the summer, and from the ground to the house in winter."

The system works a bit like an "air" heat pump used in many homes, or like a refrigerator – moving heat energy from one medium to another.

JIM PIATT

The geothermal system will supplement a conventional heating and cooling system in the house – and Piatt has already equipped the home with extra insulation and other energy-efficient features.

Piatt's approach was admittedly casual – sort of a tinkerer's project.

"I have no opinion as to whether these ideas are cutting edge or standard procedure," he said. "If I like how it works, though, it's easy to dig another trench (and lay more piping)."

Geothermal heating and cooling have been around awhile. Though electricity is needed to drive these systems, they make use of "free" heating and cooling offered by the earth. A trade group called the Geothermal Heat Pump Consortium (1-888-255-4436, or www.geoexchange.org) claims that heating and cooling using a vapor compression cycle and ground loops can save 30-70 percent on a home's heating costs and 20-50 percent on its cooling costs.

They also reduce pollution.

The tradeoff is that geothermal systems cost more to install than conventional heating and cooling units – including the hassle of digging a deep hole or a trench to lay the pipe (sometimes, the coil can be placed under a nearby body of water).

For a new homeowner, said Piatt, the question is cost-effectiveness. You have to decide how much you're willing to invest, and how soon you need your investment to pay off in terms of lower utility bills.

"If you want to live in a house for three years, you have one set of criteria for cost-effectiveness," Piatt said. "If you want to live there 10 or 20 years, you have a different set of criteria over what is cost-effective."

One authority also suggests that the cost of installing geothermal systems is reduced when holes for several different people's underground systems are done at once -- as when a subdivision is built.

West Sacramento has its gas and electric needs served by PG&E, which is a member of the Geothermal Heat Pump Consortium.

"We don't have direct provisions for promoting geothermal heat pump projects," said PG&E spokesperson Jann Taber. But we are very 'pro-heat pump.' Even though on the front end these systems are more expensive to install, over time they save on cost."

Taber explained that the company is involved in promoting energy savings – especially after this summer's well-publicized flirtation with over-the-limit consumer power demand.

"Promoting energy conservation is a major goal of PG&E," she said. "We are basically on the brink of having demand exceed supply."

One program used to encourage private investment in energy savings, said Taber, is PG&E's "Energy Star" financing program, which offers low-interest loans to those interested in investing in Energy Star-rated equipment.

"We have programs that can finance up to 100 percent of the investment up to $20,000," for homeowners, she said.

Some contractors may be able to provide Energy Star-rated geothermal equipment, said Taber. She recommended calling 1-800-713-2136 for an energy financing information kit, called a "Get Green to Go Green" package.

A hockey proposal or two for West Sac

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A sports promoter announced this week that he is pursuing plans to bring a West Coast Hockey League Franchise to a location near Raley Field, where he hopes an arena/hotel complex will be built.

A Phoenix businessman has approached promoter Doug Christoff's organization, called "PRO HOCKEY SACRAMENTO," expressing interest in building the complex and bringing a league expansion team to it.

"The out-of-town potential owner would like to build a hotel/arena complex next to Raley Field, if it is possible. I have already contacted and left a message with Bob Henderson at the Raley Corporate Office, (saying) that we are interested in buying or leasing land for this future project," Christoff said in a press release.

Art Savage, owner of the River Cats Triple-A baseball team playing at Raley Field, told the News-Ledger the River City Baseball Association hadn't been contacted by Christoff.

"We're just dealing with the baseball playoffs here," he said.

Savage is himself a veteran of the professional hockey business, having left the San Jose Sharks team in 1996 after serving as president and CEO during the team's formative years.

Christoff said he will start a season ticket sales drive in September, asking customers to put their name on a season ticket list for the proposed new hockey team. After Sept. 1, he said, the organization can be reached at (916) 922-5200.

The West Coast Hockey League is a minor league, pro-hockey association. It has franchises in San Diego, Fresno, Bakersfield, Anchorage, Fairbanks and Reno.

League president Mike McCall said he was unfamiliar with Christoff's efforts here, although he was aware Christoff had in the past worked on similar proposals elsewhere.

"We are at least knee-deep with developers and other people in the Sacramento area and especially West Sacramento concerning a multi-purpose arena," he said of the league. "The first location that comes to

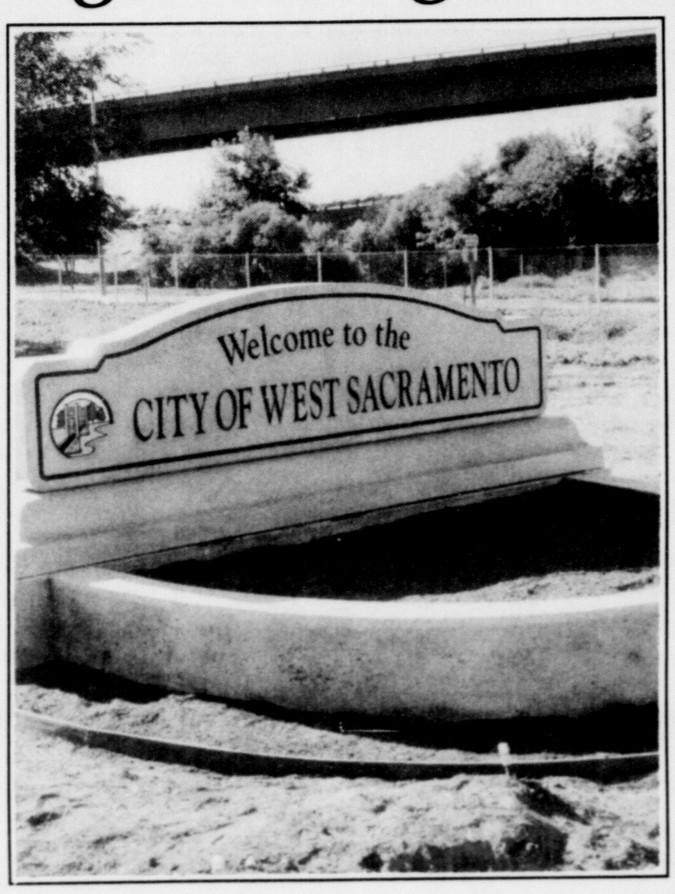
Sign at the gate



The city has laid out a welcome mat, so to speak, at one of its main entrances.

Motorists using the Park Blvd./Jefferson Blvd./U.S. 50 interchange can see a new, concrete "Welcome to the City of West Sacramento" sign. The sign will soon be surrounded by some shrub landscaping, said local parks director Don Schatzel. Landowner CalTrans will augment the sign's impact by cleaning up a large patch of earth surrounding it.

The $18,000 sign – sited to be visible to people entering the city from Sacramento on U.S. 50 – is the only one of a handful of city entrance signs to have become reality. A city plan originally called for monuments at all the main entrances to West Sacramento.

"We've talked about a lot of different locations, but this is the only one so far to be funded," said Schatzel.

Robbery suspect arrested

A lone male suspect robbed a gas station/convenience store on Evergreen Ave. on Aug. 10, and a similar robbery occurred the next day at another gas station/convenience store on Lake Rd.

The West Sacramento Police Dept. reports that Detective Jennifer Cole identified a vehicle being driven by the suspect in both cases, and learned that the suspect might be staying at a West Capitol Ave. motel.

Officer Walt Abel saw and stopped the suspect's vehicle, and Brian O'Donnell was arrested on two counts of armed robbery.

Attention candidates:

Candidates for local office are invited to submit material for a "meet the candidates" feature in an upcoming News-Ledger.

Those running for school board and city council are invited to turn in a photo and a 50-word synopsis of what they hope to accomplish in office. The photo and statement will run next to the candidate's name and job title, as these appear on the ballot. For reasons of fairness, the 50-word maximum will be enforced strictly.

Please submit the material to the News-Ledger at P.O. Box 463, West Sacramento, CA 95691, or drop it off at the newspaper office at 816 Westacre Rd. There is a mail slot available in the door. Deadline is 10:00 a.m. Monday. Please include a phone number where the candidate can be reached during the campaign.

Following this "meet the candidates" feature, the News-Ledger will begin inviting individual candidates to participate in a more in-depth interview for publication. Call 371-8030 if you have any questions.

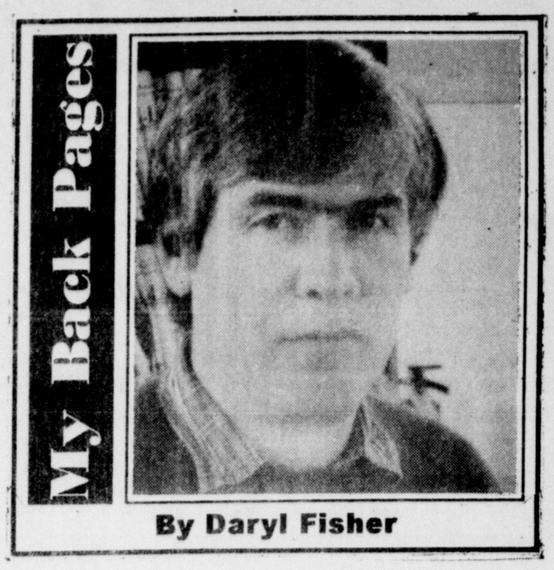
Favorite celebrity jokes & a few stupid ways to die



By Daryl Fisher

A work friend of my daughter recently emailed her dozens of "favorite celebrity jokes" and in her decade-long effort to help me improve this poor little column, she immediately faxed them over to me. Here are a few of the ones I really liked:

Did you ever walk into a room and forget why you walked in? I think that's how dogs spend their lives. (Eddie Murphy)

Have you ever wondered why kamikaze pilots wore helmets? (Ellen DeGeneres)

My Mom said she learned how to swim when someone took her out in the lake and threw her off the boat. I said, "Mom, they weren't trying to teach you how to swim." (Paula Poundstone)

The statistics on sanity are that one out of every four Americans is suffering from some form of mental illness. Think of your three best friends. If they're okay, then it's you. (Rita Mae Brown)

Why does Sea World have a seafood restaurant? I'm halfway through my fish burger and I realize, "Oh, my God, I could be eating a slow learner. (Robin Williams)

Every time a baseball player grabs his crotch, it makes him spit. That's why you should never date a baseball player. (Marsha Warfield)

I had a linguistics professor who said that it's man's ability to use language that makes him the dominant species on the planet. That may be, but I think there's one other thing that separates us from animals. We aren't afraid of vacuum cleaners. (Jeff Stilson)

The second day of a diet is always easier than the first, because by the second day, you're off it. (Jackie Gleason)

Suppose you were an idiot. And supposed you were a member of Congress. Wait a second, I just repeated myself. (Mark Twain)

If a woman has to choose between catching a fly ball and saving an infant's life, she will choose to save the infant's life, without even considering if there is a man on base. (Dave Barry)

I'm not into working out. My philosophy is "No pain, no pain." (Carol Leifer)

When asked my sexual preference, I always tell the truth, and say often. (Mackenzie Day)

And here (also faxed over by my daughter) are a half-dozen recent "Darwin Award Winners", which apparently is an annual honor given to individuals who get themselves injured or killed in the most extraordinary stupid ways.

1. In February, Santiago Alvarado, age 24, was killed in Lompoc, CA, as he fell face-first through the ceiling of a bicycle shop he was burglarizing. Death was caused when the long flashlight he had placed in his mouth (to keep his hands free) rammed into the base of his skull when he hit the floor.

2. In September in Detroit, a 41-year-old man got stuck and drowned in two feet of water after squeezing head first through an 18-inch-wide sewer grate to retrieve his car keys.

3. In October, a 49-year-old San Francisco stockbroker, who "totally zoned out when he ran," according to his wife, accidentally jogged off a 200-foot-high cliff on his daily run.

4. In February in Windsor, Ontario, Daniel Kolta and Randy Taylor died in a head-on collision, thus earning a tie in the game of chicken they were playing with their snowmobiles.

5. Paul Stiller, 47, was hospitalized in Andover Township, NJ, in September, and his wife Bonnie was also injured, by a quarter-stick of dynamite that blew up in their car. While driving around at 2 a.m., the bored couple lit the dynamite and tried to toss it out the window to see what would happen, but they apparently failed to notice that the window was rolled up.

6. And from Paderborn, Germany, comes this: Overzealous zookeeper Friedrich Riesfeldt fed his constipated elephant Stefan 22 doses of animal laxative and more than a bushel of berries, figs and prunes before the plugged-up pachyderm finally let fly, suffocating the keeper under 200 pounds of poop. Investigators say the ill-fated Friedrich, 46, was attempting to give the ailing elephant an olive-oil enema when the relieved beast unloaded on him like a dump truck full of mud. "The sheer force of the elephant's unexpected defecation knocked Mr. Riesfeldt to the ground, where he struck his head on a rock and lay unconscious as the elephant continued to evacuate his bowels on top of him," said flabbergasted Paderborn police detective Erik Dem. "With no one there to help him, he lay under all that dung for at least an hour before a watchman came along, and during that time he suffocated. It seems to be just one of those freak accidents."

Also wanted to quickly mention this year's winner of the Bulwer-Lytton contest, wherein one writes only the first line of a really bad novel, and it went like this:

"The sun oozed over the horizon, shoved aside darkness, crept along the greensward, and, with sickly fingers, pushed through the castle window, revealing the pillaged princess, hand at throat, crown asunder, gaping in frenzied horror at the sated, sodden amphibian lying beside her, disbelieving the magnitude of the frog's deception, screaming madly, "You lied!"

Note: To date, the Grace K. Ohlson Scholarship Fund has received 61 donations for a total of $4,115. The goal is to raise a $10,000 endowment, with the interest earnings being used to support a $500 annual scholarship for Washington Unified School District graduates who plan on attending a college in the Los Rios Community College system. Anyone who would like to make a contribution to the fund can do so by making a check payable to the Grace K. Ohlson Scholarship Fund, c/o the News-Ledger, PO Box 463, West Sacramento, CA 95691.

For more information about the fund, please feel free to call Daryl or Steve at the News-Ledger, 371-8030. And thanks to all of you who have already contributed!

By Richard Novoa

The NFL Season will kick-off this Labor Day weekend with the Oakland Raiders hosting the San Diego Chargers on Sunday (1:15 p.m.) and the 49ers (10 a.m., ch. 40) traveling to Atlanta to play their division rivals. The Raiders game is not sold out and will probably be blackout again locally unless your TV can bring in channel 12 from Chico. The last Raiders game to sell out in Oakland was the home opener in 1997, a Monday night game against Kansas City.

Well, here are my NFL predictions for the 2000/2001 seasons that will end up with an all expenses paid trip for two teams to Super Bowl XXXV in Tampa Bay. Let's start with the NFC and the 49ers Western Division. The 49ers will be lucky to win six games so I won't embarrass myself and pick the Niners to win their division. The West Division is very weak with New Orleans, San Francisco, Carolina and Atlanta. The West title will be a slam-dunk for the defending Super Bowl champion St. Louis Rams.

The Central Division will be a battle between the Tampa Bay and the Minnesota Vikings. Tampa Bay will win the Division and could end up with the NFC's best record. In the East, the Washington Redskins have spent too much money not to win their Division and should have no problem whipping the Eagles, Cardinals, Cowboys and Giants.

The AFC is a little stronger than the NFC teams. In the West the Oakland Raiders will upset Seattle and Denver and win the Division making the playoffs for the first time in about 10 years. The Central Division belongs to the 1999 AFC champion Tennessee Titans. In the East the Colts will have an easy time beating up on Miami, New England and Buffalo. The road to Tampa Bay will be very familiar to the Buccaneers in their NFC conference title rematch with the Rams. This time Tampa Bay will score more that 5 points! The AFC championship final will be the game of the year between the Colts and Titans. My crystal ball shows Tampa Bay and Tennessee in a classic Super Bowl XXXV finish but when the smoke clears the Bucs will become the first team NFL history to win the Super bowl in the friendly confines of their own stadium.

Each week for fun and entertainment the Sports Insider will give you his three NFL picks of the week that will always include the Monday night contest. The first week in the NFL is always the hardest due to the fact that all the teams hold back during the last two weeks of the preseason. Well, here goes! Take the Raiders (-6 ½) to blow out the Chargers in their home opener and the 49ers (+7) to cover in Atlanta. The Monday night game in St. Louis will be a very close game so take the 7 points and Denver.

The River Cats will end their regular home season on Thursday, August 31st chasing the Pacific Coast League attendance record. The Memphis Redbirds finished their home season last Saturday with 17,508 fans bringing their season total to 859,823 at Auto Zone Park. The Cats can set a new attendance record with the Sidewinders in town for the final four-game home stand. All they have to do is average 12,746 fans to lead the PCL in attendance. The Gatos will finish their inaugural season in first place winning the South Division while setting a new franchise record (86 wins) dating back to 1978. The Gatos will reward the faithful baseball fans with a fireworks show, gifts and prizes on "Fan Appreciation Night" August 31st (7:05 p.m.). Next week we'll take a look at the Cats playoff roster after the Oakland A's expand their roster to 40 players on Sept. 1st. Slugger Jose Ortiz, barring another injury, will be called up to help the A's playoff hopes. The A's still have 30 games remaining and only trail the division leading Mariners by a few games.

The River Cats will finish the 2000 season with four games in Las Vegas, Sept. 1-4. The post season will begin Sept. 6th against the Salt Lake Buzz. Playoff tickets are now on sale at the Raley Field Ticket Window and at all BASS Ticket Outlets or on-line at www.tickets.com http://www.tickets.com and by calling (916) 766-2277.

See ya next week and enjoy your Labor Day weekend!

mind is right next to Raley Field."

McCall said hockey arenas in the West Coast Hockey League are typically built with about 6,000 to 7,500 seats, and that his league currently serves as a minor league hockey association comparable to AA in baseball -- although its play level could upgrade to AAA in the future.

McCall added that Sacramento appears to be a very attractive market for an expansion team, and that the success of the River City Baseball Association here makes it look like an excellent site for varied, year-round sports activities.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

One secret to success in school

Classes is starting for another year at most of West Sacramento's local schools.

It's no secret that most of the kids in these schools turn in a performance best described as "mediocre," and that the California educational system has become focused in recent years on how to get these kids to do better on standardized achievement tests. As you might expect, there is no easy answer to this question of improving performance.

But just because there are no easy answers doesn't mean there are no answers at all.

One factor that would immediately raise local kids' grades, increase the number headed to college and improve test scores as well is increased parental involvement. That's right – education isn't just a teacher's job. Parents who care about education will raise kids who do better in school.

When Johnny and Jane have a parent who actively helps with homework and communicates daily about what's going on in school, Johnny and Jane will take their work more seriously and do a better job of it. When the parent takes the time to communicate regularly with their child's teachers, that too will help. A few hours spent volunteering at the school can help, too – even if it's just a work day around the school's grounds.

Finding time for parental involvement isn't always easy, especially in single-parent homes or homes where both parents have outside-the-home jobs. But usually it can be done.

A good place to get off on the right foot is with the schools' first round of "back-to-school night" and open houses. Why not go this year, and ask the neighbors if they want to share a ride?

To answer a few questions that crop up here from time to time:

1. No, we don't mind if you just call this newspaper "The Ledger." Just about everybody else does.

2. We also don't mind if you want to take out a "prescription" for a year.

3. Yes, it sounds good if you want to subscribe to the Vallejo-based paper as well as this one in order "to get both points of view" on local issues. But, we must ask, do you really get two valid points of view when you do this? Do you really think West Sacramento has the retail advertising base to support two community newspapers in the long run? Maybe you should think about supporting the paper you think best serves the town week in and week out, year in and year out. And if you think that's the other one, well, bless you anyway.

And finally:

Several years ago the News-Ledger ran a reader survey, and made a few changes (including the addition of comics, the police log and more "human interest" stories) based on your comments.

We haven't done another survey in awhile.

What do you think? What changes do you think are needed in the News-Ledger?

Letters to the Editor

Play hardball with Sacto

Thank you Julia Harrington for your pointed and articulate letter regarding the proposed sewage bypass connector. If West Sacramento is going to share the effluence of the growth areas of the City of Sacramento, then we damn well better have an equitable share in their affluence.

The issue is far more imminently vital to Sacramento's future than ours and we must not lose sight of that. The City of Sacramento will not tear up the streets of their precious center city and gentrified neighborhoods just to appease some well connected and well-heeled developers in Natomas. Their constituency will not stand for it. Besides them might have some serious security issues with the State of California with such a disruptive and intrusive project.

The citizens of West Sacramento need to make it known that we are paying close attention to this matter and appeal to all council members and city staffers to get the best deal possible for us. That or walk away from the table and be ready with a design of our own autonomous waste systems. Ms. Harrington is right: we do hold the upper hand in these negotiations and have the power to steer our own destiny. But we must soon and not let it languish. Delaying only plays into Sacramento's grand plan.

I hope our city management and elected officials have the courage to do what's best for us and not succumb to the seductive influence and intimidation of a sometimes ruthless and selfish neighbor ten times our size.

Herr way off base

The letter signed by Hope Herr in last week's News-Ledger was certainly a callous attack on many people with whom the author does not seem to agree. I personally regret the author's insinuations that all Republicans should be and are categorized, as was so venomously written.

I, as a Republican, do support gun control.

I, as a Republican, do support and believe in a woman's right of choice.

I, as a Republican, do support gay rights.

I, as a Republican, do support George W. Bush for President of the United States.

The author of the letter must surely have the intuition that Governor Bush is going to be elected over Vice President Gore, or why else would one become so irrational and vindictive as to pin such a misleading attack toward others.

It could be very possible the name used to sign the letter was not the author's true identity. The name "Despair Frau" would be more in keeping with the contents of the letter.

Directly to "Ms. Herr" (or Ms. Frau, whatever the case may be). If we good old boy Republicans do take your advise and load up on Viagra, you need not worry. I am sure someone like you will not be one of the targets for showing our masculinity.

Remembering Grace

Thanks for the editorials and comments about Grace Ohlson. They gave accurate description of a great lady who was not always appreciated by the very people she wished to help. People who have contributed a great deal to society in many areas, art, politics, science, etc., are frequently not recognized until after their death. Perhaps Grace Ohlson is one of those "greats". West Sacramento is a better place to live because of her strong social conscious and her willingness to work hard to achieve her goals. She gave her best to the community.

The scholarship in her memory is an appropriate tribute to her. Naming the new school in Southport would also carry her name forward as a reminder of the role model she was for an active civic resident.

Support MDA Telethon

Labor Day weekend is fast approaching, and I must tell you it's an occasion with special meaning for me. You see, more than 20 years ago I agreed to help the Muscular Dystrophy Association by reading a message for the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon from a father dying from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease). His amazing expression of courage brought me to tears, and became a personal source of inspiration that prompted me to again appear on the Telethon in 1987.

Many of you say me in last year's ABC-TV movie, "Tuesdays with Morrie" in which I played Morrie Schwartz, another brave man dying from ALS. An incredible educator, Morrie's indomitable spirit has transcended death by serving as a catalyst for living, even when one is being ravaged by disease. I'm proud that the movie, and the best seller by Mitch Albom on which it was based, have helped so many families. But Labor Day reminds me that we can't stop with Morrie's important lessons. We must find a way to stop ALS, an insidious disease affecting some 35,000 Americans.

I just completed a message for this year's Telethon. It will be part of the chorus of celebrity testimonials and performances you'll see this Labor Day weekend KMAX-TV, beginning at 8:00 a.m., Monday, Sept. 4.

Nearly a million volunteers will be working Labor Day weekend to help families affected by ALS and other muscle-wasting diseases. Like me, they want to accelerate worldwide research seeking treatment and cures and help MDA maintain its network of 230 clinics offering families unparalleled medical services without direct charge. I hope you'll try to make a difference, too.
